POSTE MILITAIRE

RAY LAMB

Known for some years as a skilful painter and converter of Historex kits, in 1973 Ray Lamb began by designing models in 75 mm for an English firm, producing also that modern masterpiece kit of a Taisho Samurai. In 1975 he began, under the name of POSTE MILITAIRE, the wonderful collection of miniatures shown on this catalogue.

Conosciuto inizialmente come abile pittore ed elaboratore di kits della Historex, nel 1973 Ray Lamb iniziò a creare modelli in 75 mm per un importante produttore inglese, per il quale produsse anche quel capolavoro di kit che è il Samurai Taisho. Nel 1975 iniziò l'attività in proprio, creando la Poste Militaire e dando vita alla magnifica collezione presentata nelle pagine di questo catalogo.

POSTE MILITAIRE

At the end of the 8th Century, almost without warning, the Vikings burst upon an unsuspecting Europe. Leaving the bleak confines of their Scandinavian homelands, they forged their way across Northern seas in lean ships of shallow draught and curved prow. Harrying the lands to their South, East and West, Danes, Swedes and Norwegians penetrated the coasts and rivers of Europe, plundering what they could carry off, burning and devastating what they could not. From the heartland of England to the Atlantic coasts of France and Spain, from Ireland and the Scottish Isles to the plains of Ukraine - all in turn felt the weight of their swords and axes.

Capo Vichingo - 9° Secolo d.C.

70 mm figure designed by Keith Durham

Basic Viking armament comprised sword or axe, spear and shield, while most men had a short knife attached to their belts. Of these weapons the sword was clearly the most popular and was treated with a certain amount of reverence, especially in the case of old swords that had been handed down from generation to generation.

Alasdair MacDonald was born in the late 1630's and being the twelfth Chieftain of Glencoe, took the title "Mclain". Growing to well six feet and inheriting the flame red hair and warlike disposition of his family, he cut a magnificent figure. In 1650 he was accepted as the leader of his people ruling the glen with an authority that was absolute.

Dracula was born in Transylvania in the old Germanic town of Sigishoara. His father Vlad II was invested with the Order of the Dragon, a crusading sect dedicated to the destruction of the Turks. Vlad II took the name "Dracul" being the Romanian word for Dragon. Thus Vlad III became known as Prince Dracula - son of the Dragon.

During 11th Century Scotlad was ruled from the ancient capital of Scone by an Ard-na-Righ, or High King. The realm was divided into six provinces, the two largest being Moray and Athol. MacBeth was born in 1005, his name meaning "the son of life". In later life he was described as "the red haired King; fair, yellow, of ruddy countenance, and tall."

The 200 years from 1450 to 1650 are often referred to as the Age of Discovery, for during this period European explorers voyaged to most of the habitable regions of the globe. By 1520 many islands of the West Indies had been explored and a considerable number of Spanish colonies had been founded on them. Most of the settlers in these colonies were ex-soldiers who had fought in the armies which drove the Moors out of the southern Spain, or served in the Italian campaigns against the French. They were a hardy, adventurous and unruly crew, no longer able to find suitable employment in Europe.

Spanish Conquistador - 1530
Conquistatore Spagnolo - 1530

Anxious to avoid the dull work of the administration and planters who inevitably followed the explorers in these new lands, these men soon began to seek new frontiers, once again turning their faces westwards towards the unknown. The age of Los Conquistadores, "the conquerors", had arrived.

Galloglas means "foreign young warrior" and probably refers to their Viking blood. But essentially these warriors were Gaelic in tongue and custom. Although frequently from noble families and regarded as gentlemen soldiers, the galloglas did not fight on horseback, but assembled in bodies of heavily armoured foot soldiers.

A..G. "Sailor" Malan - RAF Battle of Britain 1940
Pilota RAF - Battaglia d'Inghilterra 1940

Adolf Gysbert "Sailor" Malan was not only one of the RAF's highest scoring aces during the Battle of Britain, he also went on to become one of the highest scoring commonwealth pilots of the war.

A South African born in Wellington in 1910, Malan had served several years in the Merchant Navy (hence the nickname Sailor) before joining the RAF and applying for pilot training in 1935.

Pilota Luftwaffe - Battaglia d'Inghilterra

...without question one of the outstanding personalities during the Battle of Britain. However, his fame went far beyond his achievements as one of the top-scoring aces of that battle.

Werner "Vati" Mölders was the first pilot to receive the Knights Cross (may 29, 1940) and was the first to add the Diamonds to the Oak Leaves and Swords of this award for his 100th and 101st victories on July 15, 1941.
