D. F. Grieve Models' first venture into a larger scale is a superb piece of work. The 100mm scale figure representing a Private of the 93rd Highlanders (Landing Order) Crimea, September 1854 should find instant favour among the military modelling fraternity. Detail is excellent, crisp and clean, and what we have come to expect from David Grieve. I have two minor criticisms with the model; first the head is positioned with a rather shallow ball and socket joint, the head fitting into a shallow depression in the collar. I can see this causing some aggravation in assembly amongst the less experienced. Why this couldn't have been positioned with the normal peg, a more positive form of positioning and assembly (as the remainder of the pieces of the kit), I can't imagine. Secondly, the beautifully sculptured rifle has been cast with the bayonet fixed — a "point" (no pun intended) of weakness and one that could easily be bent or broken if not watched and treated with care. The kit comes complete with detailed painting instructions and is a first-class figure. It costs £14.10 from David Grieve Models, St. Andrews, Westwood Road, Betsham, Nr. Gravesend, Kent. DA13 9LZ.
